Aniplex and Fathom Events Partner to bring “I want to eat your pancreas” to U.S Cinemas

Fathom Events partners up with Aniplex of America to bring “I want to eat your pancreas” a coming-of-age film based on the bestselling award-winning novel by Yoru Sumino. “I want to eat your pancreas” the anime adaption explores the relationship between the terminally ill Sakura and the unnamed protagonist, who goes by “Me,” as they embark on an emotional journey during an unforgettable spring. As these two individuals try to learn and find happiness, they come into turn to discover the true meaning of compassion. In addition to the film feature, attendees will also view exclusive extra footage, including interviews with the cast and crew.

Tickets for “I want to eat your pancreas” are available now at <https://www.fathomevents.com> and participating box offices. “I want to eat your pancreas” will be featured in more than 200 U.S cinemas subtitled on Thursday, February 7 and English dubbed on Sunday, February 10. For a complete list of the theatre locations, visit the Fathom Events Website.

The special two night event included the world premiere of the English dub featuring cast members: Robbie Daymond and Erika Harlacher as the main characters, along with Kira Buckland, Kyle McCarley, and Dorah Fine in supporting roles.
